

Meet Your Obstetrician and Gynecologist

I treat every patient as if they were a family member of mine. I give them all the options so that they can make an informed decision to give them the best care possible. I want patients to walk out of my office feeling like all of their questions were answered in a way they can understand.

Susan Cooper-Morphew, MD, FACOG

Why I Became a Medical Provider

"My goal has always been to use my personal attributes to help as many people I can. My grandmother inspired me. After she retired from her job in the United States, she accepted a job in Nairobi, Kenya where she was president of a university and opened a women's empowerment center. She always taught me to use the gifts we were born with to improve the world. My skills are best used in medicine."
